Barry man is jailed for glass attack

A SELF-employed builder has been scarred for life after being "struck squarely" in the face with a glass that smashed on impact, writes AJ SICLUNA.

Lewis Hopkins underwent a three-hour operation to remove fragments of glass and had 40 stitches put in wounds to his left cheek, nose, and ear, and the top of his head.

There were also problems with his saliva gland function, said prosecutor Nuhu Gobir at Cardiff Crown Court.

"It was fortunate he was not blinded," said Judge Eleri Rees.

James Webley, a 35-year-old labourer, of Laleston Close, Barry, was jailed for four-and-a-half years after pleading guilty to a charge of wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

Mr Gobir said the victim went into Cardiff for a night out.

He went to Yates Bar in Greyfriars Road and left at 11pm to go to another bar. On the way, he spoke to two men and things were "as good as gold". Suddenly, near a bus stop, Webley hit him in the face with a glass.

"It came out of nowhere. It hit him squarely in the face and smashed. There was blood everywhere," said Mr Gobir.

Mr Hopkins said he could not understand why he had been attacked.

Police turned up quickly and took him to hospital.

In a victim impact statement, Mr Hopkins said he had to remain indoors for one week and could not socialise.

He could not bring himself to tell his mother as he didn't want to see her upset.

He added that he could only go on short walks, he suffered shooting pain and because of that, could not eat properly.

He stressed that he had been caused to lose income. In addition, he said he was emotionally very upset and would be scarred permanently.

Mr Hopkins described it as "a massive setback in his life."

When arrested, Webley said he punched the victim and didn't use a glass.

He was said to have previous convictions for 22 offences including assaulting the police.

His barrister, Gareth Morley, said he was "absolutely appalled by his behaviour" and had written to the victim expressing his remorse.

'Don't charge for parking' Barry traders make plea

Traders in High Street, Barry held a protest this week and the message was 'Say no to Barry parking charges'.

THE Vale Council is set to announce its new car parking policy in the spring and Barry traders have told The GEM they fear the impact it might have on local businesses, writes TIM CHAPMAN.

The consultation, which included proposed extra charges for parking in town centre car parks, designated streets and coastal locations, concluded on September 28 and the expectation was that a report would be considered by the Vale Cabinet and council committees late last year.

The GEM contacted the council this week to ask when the new policy would be unveiled and a spokesman said: "The council is currently developing a car parking policy following widespread consultation on a draft parking strategy document produced by consultants last year.

"That process has involved canvassing the views of residents, businesses and other interested parties, all of which must be fully considered. The policy will be presented to Cabinet in the spring and if approved implemented after that."

But local traders, who face the twin threats of retail parks and internet shopping, think charges are a step too far. Fay Blakeley of Homemade Wales, in High Street, told The GEM she feared charges in such an uncertain economic climate.

She explained: "Every day we're reading headlines about how tough it is in the high street in the current uncertain climate. The independent businesses on High Street Barry are working hard to buck that trend, offering a unique customer experience, but it's crucial that the Vale Council works with us and supports us.

"Parking charges will have a huge impact on customer experience and behaviour, including cutting down on browse time, which in turn will have an effect on the bottom line of all the independent businesses on High Street."

Is the dog mess menace animal or human?

I READ with interest M Hancock's letter published in last week's GEM (February 7) regarding the problem of dog mess in public places.

I refer in particular to his comments about owners who either bag up their pooch's mess and then 'thoughtfully' (my description) leave it in a convenient place to be disposed of by someone else, or those who merely continue with their walk leaving said mess on public pathways.

Before making any further comment, I would stress that we are, and have always been, dog lovers having had several dogs as much-loved pets over many years.

The road outside where we live is used daily by a significant number of people walking to and from parkland adjacent to the River Thaw. This parkland has been a favourite location for dog walkers for many years as they can let their dogs run free across a wide expanse of grass without fear of traffic.

Recently,on a Monday morning following the recycling collection, I retrieved my green boxes to find a bag full of dog mess had been placed in my empty food box.

How very thoughtful of the owner to ensure it was placed somewhere 'safe'.

The week before last, on Sunday evening we placed our recycling boxes at the roadside for collection the following morning, only to discover that we had both trodden in a significant amount of dog mess which we had unfortunately walked through our hall over a cream carpet and into the kitchen.

I think anyone reading this letter will be able to imagine our feelings on the matter.

After a lovely relaxing day we had not envisaged we would be on our hands and knees scrubbing and disinfecting carpets and the kitchen floor at 10.15pm before retiring to bed.

A neighbour told me that, in the summer, she inadvertently picked up a handful of dog mess while planting shrubs in her flower bed which was really disgusting. This was a clear indication that the dog in question was not on a lead, as it would not have been able to access her garden otherwise.

Until recently there was a council notice at the entrance of the road which clearly stated: "Dogs must be kept on a lead until entering the park." Sadly, this seems to have suffered either from age or weather and is no longer legible, so I think it is reasonable to ask the council to erect a replacement.

The parkland has always been a magnet for dog walking and I am not petitioning for change. I would ask, however, that people take more care and responsibility for their pets and the local environment.

If an owner is seen ignoring their pet's fouling, could other owners remind them that not cleaning up the mess is an offence and ask them to please take the appropriate action. I am certainly not advocating a confrontation, but if the situation persists perhaps the culprit should be advised that they could be reported to the local Council in an effort to avoid serial offenders giving all dog owners a bad reputation.

Corporate vandalism or careful planning?

WELSH Water has revealed its intention to fell many trees in Porthkerry's Mill Wood in order to lay two new pipes.

It intends to clear a permanent 15-metre-wide tree free corridor over 200 metres long, creating an island of trees separated from the rest of the woodland. Obviously, that will impact all kinds of wildlife.

Welsh Water advises it chose this option, instead of using the existing route through the housing estate, to avoid "disruption".

My view is that it's much cheaper to drive a digger through trees than dig up a road. I think this is corporate vandalism and the trouble is they can do so apparently without needing permission; it seems they don't need council planning consent.

We should be protecting woodland and habitat as well as the feel of the park, not driving pipelines through it. Welsh Water wants a permanent 15-metre-wide tree free zone so the pipe is undamaged by roots – it would be better not to go through woodland in that case.

(Name and address supplied)

In response, a Welsh Water spokesperson said: "As part of our £2.5 million upgrade of the wastewater treatment system in Nant Talwg, Barry, we have made protection of the surrounding environment a central and overriding priority throughout the planning of the work.

"To ensure this, we have liaised with the Vale Council about our plans to make sure they were comfortable with how we would carry out this work, and commissioned ecologists to survey the area to ensure our work would have minimal impact on the local environment, and that it complies with strict environmental guidelines and Natural Resources Wales' licences.

"While the work does mean we have to remove some trees at the site, this is to ensure the pipes will not be disturbed by roots in future – and any trees removed will be replaced by the same or similar species at a two-to-one ratio to ensure no long-term impact.

"We have also consulted with ecologists to make sure our work is timed to avoid disturbing wildlife on the site and local authorities have been clear that our work will have minimal impact on the surrounding environment.

"We will continue to closely monitor the situation after the work begins, to safeguard local wildlife and the environment throughout the project.

"We are absolutely committed to ensuring we provide an effective wastewater system which gives customers a first class service and protects our valuable environment.

"Our work at Nant Talwg reflects our commitment to re-invest profits for the benefit of customers and the environment."

'Welsh Government is attempting to undermine UK asylum policies'

THE article last week reporting Jane Hutt's attempt to turn Wales into a 'Nation of Sanctuary' for refugees and asylum seekers should be of great of concern to local people.

Asylum and immigration policy is not devolved and the Welsh Government has no business trying to use the powers it does have to undermine the UK's approach with a more liberal scheme in Wales.

Mrs Hutt's plan aims to make Wales a beacon for refugees across the world, and may succeed in attracting more interest in Wales as a destination country for migrants. She has made clear that she wants to see improved housing and financial support for those claiming asylum 'regardless of their route to the UK'. Those who come to the UK on the back of a lorry or otherwise having first travelled to safe countries, are not genuine refugees but instead economic migrants.

We should all want to see the humane treatment of genuine refugees, those pre-identified as such and directly taken from war zones by the UK Government in limited numbers, but should also be concerned by the approach that Mrs Hutt is now taking Wales in her ministerial role.

No good will come of signalling that any route to the UK is acceptable; and deliberate regional variation in refugee support across the UK could create pull factors where none previously existed.

Jane Hutt and her Assembly colleagues should spend their time dealing with devolved areas like health and education and leave asylum and immigration policy to Westminster.

'Keep questioning Welsh Government motives to plant'

AFTER a question from a member of DIAG, it was heartening for the people of Barry that their council agreed unanimously to question the motives of the Welsh Government in taking 14 months to take legal advice on the requirement to hold an Environmental Impact Assessment on the planning and licensing of the incinerator at Barry Dock, that is so close to the town centre.

With this action by Barry Town Council, there may be hope for the health, wellbeing, democracy and justice for future generations of our town.

Paul Robertson, Barry.

'Biomass assurances don't convince me'

I COULD not resist a wry grin when I saw last week's headline in The GEM quoting the Biomass plant bosses' insistence that there will be "no pollution problems".

Fellow readers of my generation will remember the Profumo Scandal of the 1960s.

At the trial, the defence council told Mandy Rice Davies that Lord Astor denied having an affair with her, or even meeting her.

Miss Rice Davies famously replied: "Well, he would, wouldn't he?"

It was the recollection of this incident that caused my amusement.

I have always felt this is entirely the wrong location for such a plant because it is so close to people's homes, the schools and town.

These people apparently know better. I hope they are right, because once it is up and running it will be too late.

David Alexander, Barry Island.

Scouts raise money with deliveries

THE parents of Beavers, Cubs and Scouts in Llantwit Major gave up their time for the Scout Post at Christmas to sort and deliver between 7,000 and 8,000 cards in Llantwit Major and the surrounding villages.

In addition, they link with other Scout groups to deliver throughout the Vale, Barry, Penarth and Cardiff to deliver in their areas.

It is the main annual fundraising activity for the group and last year, they made just over £2,000.

The group would like to thank Filco Foods, Co-op Poundfield, The Chocolate Box, Spar Boverton Road, Plaza Toys Poundfield, Crawshay Stores and Wick Post Office for supporting them by selling stamps and having post boxes in their shops.

HIGH TIDE TIMES
(UNTIL FEBRUARY 21)

The high tides listed in this week's GEM are those in Porthcawl. It should be remembered that along the coast, high tide times will vary. For instance, in Barry, the high point will be 20-25 minutes later.

DATE	Time AM	Ht M	Time PM	Ht M
07 Thur	00.14	7.7	12.57	7.7
08 Fri	01.38	7.8	14.23	8.0
09 Sat	02.59	8.2	15.42	8.5
10 Sun	04.13	8.8	16.49	9.2
11 Mon	05.14	9.4	17.47	9.9
12 Tues	06.08	10.1	18.36	10.4
13 Wed	06.57	10.5	19.23	10.7
14 Thur	07.43	10.8	20.09	10.7

While The GEM makes every effort to check the accuracy of tide tables, we recommend that anyone putting out to sea, or walking in an area where they could be cut off, should check with a tide table specific to their location.

Traders' parking plea to Vale Council

In Llantwit Major there are similar concerns. Jacquie Jenkins who owns The Hair Studio said: "Small businesses are in constant competition with online shopping and out of town centres and supermarkets where there is free parking. Introducing parking charges in our town will only add to this battle."

Barry councillors called on the council this week to scrap any ideas of car park charges in the centre of the town. Cllr Ian Johnson said: "Vale Council plans to charge in Barry's town centre car parks have been rejected by the public and by Holton Road traders at the town centre summit in November.

"At a time when shops are facing increased uncertainty, the council should not be adding to it. This has now gone on too long. The council should make an immediate announcement confirming that there will be no town centre car parking charges in Barry.

"This would remove the element of doubt and show council support for the town centre."

Cllr Millie Collins, who also represents a town centre ward, added: "Holton Road was hit last year by a series of high-profile closures at the very heart of the town. There is nobody in the real world who thinks that introducing car parking charges will help Barry town centre."

Thor? Heath's a jolly good fellow!

A NINE-year-old Barry schoolboy, who grew his hair to resemble the Norse god Thor, donated his hair to a children's cancer charity to "make someone smile when they are sad".

Heath Thomas, who lives in the Colcot area, made the donation to The Little Princess Trust which makes wigs for children and adults who have lost their hair due to cancer and other illnesses.

Master Thomas said: "I want to make someone smile when they are sad because they've lost their hair due to cancer and other illnesses."

Master Thomas's hair was cut by Annie at Salon Ombre in Cardiff and he raised £403 for The Little Princess Trust.

Woman assaulted while walking dogs

POLICE are investigating an assault which took place in Cyril Street, Barry, on February 6, at around 9pm.

The victim, a 59-year-old woman who was out walking her dogs, was uninjured and went to The Castle Pub for help. Staff reported the incident to police and took her home.

A police spokesman said: "Anyone who may have seen something suspicious in the area, or who has any information which could assist the investigation, can call 101 quoting reference 1900045857 or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111."

'Affordable homes' project breaks ground

WORK has started on a £2.8-million housing development on the site of the former Barry Dock Cons Club.

Demand for homes in Barry is high, with 1,425 people on the housing waiting list for a one-bedroom home and 756 applicants waiting for two-bedroom accommodation.

The new development will create 21 'affordable homes' with Hafod, the Vale Council and south Wales contractor Morganstone working in partnership on the project.

Barry Dock Cons Club on Station Street was bought by Hafod in 2016 and was due to be demolished to make way for the new development, but was severely damaged by an arson attack in May 2018.

Since then, work has been under way to prepare the site for building work to start.

The scheme has been funded by Hafod and Welsh Government grants. The 15 one-bedroom and six two-bedroom apartments should be completed next winter.

Vale Leader Cllr John Thomas said: "This important scheme will not only provide much-needed affordable housing for Vale residents in need of it, but also give this site a new lease of life.

"We are committed to regeneration projects of this type and are involved in a number of similar schemes elsewhere in the county."

Dr Rhys Jones meets pupils

SCIENTIST, lecturer at Cardiff University and science and wildlife TV presenter Dr Rhys Jones recently visited the pupils at High Street Primary School.

He gave a talk and visited the school's forest area.

Dr Jones gave some hints to the school and said: "It is great to see the brilliant work you are doing developing the forest garden, giving pupils access to positive natural play areas, helping them grow native plants and engage with local wildlife."

Sugarcraft delights at show

ON February 9, The Welsh National Sugar Craft and Cake Show held its debut show at Cardiff County Hall.

The show brought together some of the finest sugar artists for demonstration and collaboration, as well as a whole host of industry leading exhibitors and traders.

Local amateurs, the Sugar Sensations, entered the Group Class Section where a woodland scene was made entirely from sugar. The group of 10 ladies from Barry and Penarth were delighted to be awarded silver for their stunning work depicting the woodland waking up from winter to spring.

The ladies all attend Carmel Lovell's sugarcraft course at the Palmerston Adult Centre Barry.

Barry precept sees 10 per cent increase

THE Labour Leader of Barry Town Council has defended the 10 per cent increase in the precept for 2019-20 which was decided at Monday night's meeting.

The Plaid Cymru group was unhappy with the increase and accused the town council of wasteful spending.

Following the vote, Plaid Cymru councillor Ian Johnson told The GEM: "In the last two years Labour and Conservative councillors have voted for a 15 per cent increase in council tax on Barry Town Council while Plaid Cymru councillors voted against.

"In the five years before that, there was an increase of only 0.5 per cent. Anybody looking at those facts would ask questions about what is going on."

Cllr Shirley Hodges, leader of the Plaid Cymru group, added: "Barry Town Council is very good at spending other people's money. It's like water through a sieve. In the real world, people are making cutbacks due to austerity, but Barry Town Council just carries on regardless. I don't think that's acceptable."

Barry Town Council Leader Cllr Bronwen Brooks said there were core funding issues that could not be ignored.

She said: "At the outset, I think it would be worth clarifying that Barry Town Council raise a precept and not council tax, as misleadingly stated by Plaid Cymru, and the precept is the main source of funding for the town council.

"We support local organisations with community grants and support the Memo with core funding – as well as various events for the community and families, often free of charge and inclusive for all, including the Christmas lights and fireworks, as well as supporting local business with Shop Local.

"This is real investment in our community at the most local level. We also believe that community engagement is vital and this shapes the ideas and aspirations that residents have – they are the voices that tell us what they want, and we will always listen and do our best to deliver.

"We proposed an increase of 10.04 per cent at the meeting last night which in real terms is a total of £57.86 a year for the average rate payer, or an increase of 44p a month.

"Plaid Cymru proposed a budget that plucked an income figure out of thin air and then proceeded to change their minds about what that figure should be. What a reckless proposal with public money!

"One of Plaid Cymru's proposed cuts was to remove the dementia friendly budget, which would leave the town council unable to deliver dementia friendly projects over the next year, a huge blow for some of our most vulnerable residents and would break our promise to become a dementia friendly town. I'm surprised that Plaid Cymru have no compassion or support for our residents and their families suffering with dementia.

"I believe we offer a value service for the people of Barry and I promise residents that they are at the core of every responsible and cost-effective decision we make."

The interim Conservative leader Cllr Vincent Bailey told The GEM he believed a "fair settlement" had been arrived at. He said: "It's clear that the town council faced a challenging financial settlement this year, but to ask residents to foot the bill for a 20 per cent hike in the precept was madness.

"In the end, the voice of Barry residents was heard and what now stands is a fair settlement in challenging times. We worked hard with all parties to bring the bill down and the result is a rise of just 44 pence per month – less than half of that originally proposed.

"Sadly, but inevitably, Plaid sought to play politics on the night, but their attempt to further reduce the precept would have saved residents just £1.30 a year and totally decimated the council's budget for dementia support projects."

'Shop Local Barry' conducts shopping survey

LAST year, 'Shop Local Barry' launched a survey to understand shopping trends in the town.

The survey is now being repeated to see if there have been any changes in the way people shop.

The survey is available online at: www.surveymonkey.co.uk/r/M922XCJ.

Shop Local Barry is keen for local people to share the link with family and friends to get as wide a response as possible.

Members enjoy a musical chat with Clive at U3A

THE speaker for the Barry U3A february meeting was musician Clive Sims, who not only talked about music from the classics to boogie woogie, but played extracts from many pieces on the keyboard or piano which he had recorded earlier.

So we had a little bit of Grieg and Schubert, plus a beautiful waltz in A flat by Brahms and the Swan by Saint Saens. Clive was demonstrating some of the many different styles of the classics.

Then he moved onto jazz, which again he said, had many different styles. He spoke about Fats Waller and what he called 'bent notes' in the Blues. Jazz is renowned for improvisation and so Clive played two different versions of 'When you and I were young, Maggie' to demonstrate this.

He moved onto Gershwin who, he said, fused jazz with classical music, for example, Rhapsody in Blue, and Porgy and Bess. Apparently Gershwin's first big hit was 'Swanee' which was of course picked up by Al Jolson. But there were many others, too numerous to mention here. Which was why Gershwin became quite a wealthy man.

Unfortunately, the same could not be said for the man known as the Father of American Music, Stephen Foster. No! I hadn't heard of him either, but I had heard of his music. He wrote many of the so called 'minstrel' songs such as Oh! Susanna and the Camptown Races, but perhaps one of his best known songs was Beautiful Dreamer which was regarded as a 'parlour' song.

There was no radio or TV when Stephen Foster was writing music so it is a credit to his talents that his music became known all over America. But apparently his publishers didn't always pay him the royalties he was owed and he didn't make a lot of money out of his music.

Clive finished with one of the best known and loved musicians and singer of all time, Nat King Cole. The American comedian Jack Benny once said that Nat King Cole was the 'best friend a song ever had' and we can probably all sing along to When I Fall in Love, and Unforgettable. Music would have been much the poorer without these 'greats' who gave us such diversity.

If you are no longer in full time employment or raising a family, then you are in your third age and new members are very welcome to come along to our meetings. The next meeting will be on Monday, March 4 at 2pm in Bethel Baptist Church Hall at Harbour Road. Phone Christine on 01446 701537.

Lapwing reportedly found with puncture wounds in Barry

A LAPWING was found in Barry with puncture wounds under her wings in what RSPCA Cymru classed as "...a suspected shooting incident".

RSPCA Cymru was contacted after the wading bird was found at Dow Corning, on Cardiff Road, in Barry.

A member of the public found the bird injured and unable to fly on the evening of Thursday, January 17, and contacted the RSPCA.

A veterinary examination found the bird was so injured, with a fractured shoulder and damaged eye, that she had to be destroyed to prevent further suffering.

An RSPCA employee said: "This lapwing was found in a very bad way in Barry.

"We believe the bird was shot on January 17 and suffered further damage as she hit the ground.

"Sadly, her injuries were so severe that vets had no choice but to put the animal to sleep.

"Anyone with information is urged contact our inspectorate appeal line on 0300 123 8018."

It was not reported if a pellet or other projectile was found in the bird, nor if the puncture wounds appeared to be entry and exit wounds.

Clerk is suspended amid fears Sully Council could go bust

THE 16-month suspension of a clerk alleged to have images of an adult nature on his work computer is 'bankrupting' a small community council, councillors have said.

Emails leaked to the Local Democracy Reporting Service (LDRS) show the depth of concern in Sully and Lavernock Community Council at their financial plight. The council has effectively been paying for two clerks since September 2017 when David Roberts was suspended over the allegations of adult images and non-council-related work on his work PC.

His suspension on full pay has lasted for more than 16 months as an investigation into the allegations has not been resolved and an acting clerk has been hired by the council. In the leaked emails, one member urges the community council to resolve Mr Roberts' ongoing suspension, saying it is 'well down the road to bankrupting this council'.

The councillor calls on the public body to stop paying for 'two clerks and two groundsman's' salaries every month, to stop all capital expenditure and only fund essential revenue costs. He said he is yet to see any evidence behind Mr Roberts' original suspension.

David Roberts.
Image by Welsh Assembly.

More emails leaked to LDRS show the wage bill for the council is projected to be £80,000 on March 31, around half the council's expenditure, but its funding for 2019/20 could be cut to £132,000 – which means it would have to cut around £30,000 to balance its budget.

The council is understood to be looking to increase its council tax precept by 2.5 per cent next year.

Sully and Lavernock Community Council has refused to answer a Freedom of Information request from the LDRS asking how much disciplinary action against Mr Roberts has cost, or details of his salary. The LDRS has asked the Information Commissioner's Office to investigate.

Five councillors voted to suspend Mr Roberts at a council meeting on September 27, 2017 after concerns were raised. In a further meeting, the council voted not to notify the police of the allegations against Mr Roberts.

When approached by the LDRS for comment Sully Council said: "It would be entirely inappropriate for the community council to comment on anything pertaining to Mr Roberts. There are a number of reasons which include the confidentiality of the employment relationship and data protection."

Mr Roberts confirmed to the LDRS he is employed by the council as its clerk, but said: "This is a personnel issue which is confidential," and did not comment further.

Cllr Steve Oaten, chairman of the council, also declined to comment when approached by the LDRS.

'Banging the drum for independent traders'

IN the Vale, we're fortunate to have excellent independent traders, such as those on our High Streets in Barry, Cowbridge and Llantwit Major, which play a vital role in our local economy.

Over recent months I have spoken to small businesses across the Vale about the impact of business rates, which is regularly raised as a key issue.

As a strong supporter of our local businesses, I am pleased that the UK Government acted on these concerns, with the Chancellor's Budget announcement that business rates in England would be cut by a third.

Readers will note that this is a devolved matter, so the Welsh Government has received the necessary funding from Westminster to implement the same relief for businesses in Wales.

However, I am disappointed to see that the Welsh Government's High Street Relief Scheme falls significantly short of the relief in England, which will see some Welsh traders paying thousands of pounds more in business rates.

I am really keen to see the Welsh Government recognise the challenges faced by small business in the Vale and respond by matching the rate relief offered to businesses in England. This would give traders in the Vale the support they need and help to make Wales a more attractive place to do business.

Welsh Secretary
ALUN CAIRNS
reports to GEM readers

We've got a fantastic opportunity in Wales to boost our economy, with measures such as the removal of the Severn tolls significantly helping to promote business growth.

In addition to the money for rates relief, the UK Government has agreed £300m of additional borrowing so that the Welsh Government can build the M4 relief road. These two decisions would mean be a huge help to traders, which will support job creation and uplift the Welsh economy.

I'll continue to bang the drum for small traders in the Vale. I know from my conversations with them what a huge difference a cut to the cost of business rates will make.

For many it will allow them to take on more staff or make improvements to their business which will benefit the whole of the Vale and further afield for years to come.

Her Majesty's Coastguard on Barry Island welcomes new team members

LAST summer the volunteer team at Barry Island Coastguard, based at Redbrink Crescent, held an open day.

They were looking to recruit four new volunteers to join the team. The day was a great success, and after interviews and medicals Dan, Gareth, Paul and Haden took up the positions.

After training days away with our full time staff and every Tuesday night with the team, the basic foundation training was complete. There is a lot to learn to be a qualified coastguard and they will continue to learn and train as the months go on.

This week Dan, Gareth, Paul and Haden go live on paged callouts. This means they each now carry a pager and can be called upon if and when someone dials 999 asking for the Coastguard in Barry or for the surrounding coastline area.

An HM Coastguard spokesperson said: "It is a great feeling to know we, as volunteer coastguards, make a difference to those who need it in a coastal emergency and are part of a fantastic team."

City Deal: councillors claim that scrutiny system 'is not working'

CONCERNS over the level of scrutiny given to the Cardiff Capital Region City Deal have been raised by those in charge of scrutinising the programme.

The joint overview and scrutiny committee consists of councillors from across the 10 local authorities represented within the £1.2-billion programme.

It meets up to four times a year, with the meetings funded by £25,000 from the City Deal's joint cabinet budgets.

The committee is due to meet again in May, September and December this year, with another meeting scheduled in March 2020.

However, there is dissatisfaction with the current arrangements, with members claiming the number of meetings is inadequate to carry out thorough checks on City Deal projects.

At a meeting in Newport recently, Cardiff councillor Ramesh Patel spoke of feeling "uncomfortable" about the level of scrutiny expected of the committee.

"This is a major once in a lifetime deal, and you can't just expect us to scrutinise the bare bones," he said.

"To only have four meetings and a budget of £25,000, it doesn't get us very far. It's a joke."

Cllr Patel argued that councils should approach Welsh Government for extra money for the committee given that a large part of the £734 million fund for the South Wales Metro is coming from Cardiff Bay.

He asked if greater scrutiny could be given to the Metro, but Kellie Beirne, director of the City Deal, said the Metro sat outside the £495m regional fund to which councils were contributing.

"Oversight on the transport side of things is more Welsh Government and Transport for Wales and I expect them to offer some joint scrutiny of that across the 10 authorities," she said.

"There are no more projects to scrutinise at this point, the [IQE facility] is the only project in the bag."

The committee had attended a site visit to the £38.5m facility and, at the meeting on the same day, received a presentation on the project from Monmouthshire council leader Peter Fox.

But Newport councillor Majid Rahman was confused about whether they were scrutinising or discussing the facility.

"I thought it was just a briefing; I didn't realise we were scrutinising," he said.

"If this is what's expected of us as a committee, we're just ticking boxes."

Vale councillor Vincent Bailey added: "This was a useful information gathering session but there was no detailed scrutiny."

"We're at a point where we're going into our third meeting [in May] but these don't feel like scrutiny sessions. They feel more more like a lecture from a public university course."

Setting of police council tax: a clarification

THE GEM has been asked to clarify a report in last week's edition (February 7) headlined 'Depleted police panel fails in bid to veto police council tax rise'.

The report, from a local democracy reporter, stated that there were not enough members present to vote against the rise. However, there were enough members, but too few voted against it at the meeting to veto the proposal.

Staying safe matters

FARMERS and those working in the agricultural industry need to ensure that farm safety remains on their priority list and that they comply with the relevant health and safety regulations.

The FUW, as part of the Wales Farm Partnership (WFSP), a collaboration of all the key agricultural stakeholder organisations in Wales, is reminding rural families that children should not be in the workplace; that it is illegal for under-13s to ride on agricultural vehicles or machinery and that work equipment like ATVs should not be used by children.

Did you know that being struck by or run over by farm machinery or visiting vehicles is the biggest single cause of children being killed on farms? Sadly, accidents most frequently reported in the UK involve falling from tractors and ATVs or quad bikes.

Danger really lurks everywhere. Year after year, we hear of tragedies involving children on farms drowning or being asphyxiated, being crushed, hit by falling objects or collapsing stacks and injured by animals.

At a working farm unsupervised children, who are naturally inquisitive and often fearless, can face risk from almost everything in sight as well as the human element - the unsuspecting family member, visitor or delivery person who drives onto the yard. In addition it is worth reminding ourselves that 33 people were killed in agriculture across Britain in 2017/18 - around 18 times higher than the all-industry fatal injury rate.

That means 33 families have lost a loved one. We also know that in the last 10 years, almost one person a week has been killed as a direct result of agricultural work and many more have been seriously injured or made ill by their work. It is worth remembering that the Health & Safety Executive (HSE) will not hesitate to take appropriate enforcement action against those who fall below the required standards, especially where children are involved.

Life is never the same again for family members left behind after a work-related death, or for those looking after someone with a long-term illness or serious injury caused by their work. With this in mind, the Union remains committed to highlighting best practices to help farmers avoid becoming a farm accident or fatality statistic; but it can't be stressed enough that the person responsible for farm safety is the person in the mirror.

There are some bad examples out in the public eye with regard to farm safety at the moment, so please - make the promise to yourself and your family that farm safety, your safety and that of your family and co-workers, will be a top priority.

Rachel Saunders of the Farmers' Union of Wales writes on Farming Matters.

Minky business

MINKY is a four-month-old Lurcher who is full of beans and has lots of energy to burn, so he is looking for a very active home.

Minky can be a little worried in new situations, but it does not take him long to gain confidence and show his "cheeky" side.

He must live with another dog already in the home to help with his confidence building and socialising. Training classes are essential and these can be provided by Dogs Trust Dogs' School.

Minky can live with children aged eight years and over, but unfortunately he is unable to live with cats or small furries.

Ploughing and Hedging Society makes plans for the coming year

THE Vale of Glamorgan Ploughing & Hedging Society held its first meeting of the year at the Six Bells Inn, Penmark on February 7.

Chairman Andrew Studley welcomed the 14 committee members and requested that all present stand in silence for a moment in memory of John Watts, a loyal member of the Society, who died in January.

It was agreed that tractor run fundraising raffles will be donated to the Parkinsons UK Fund in memory of John.

The annual ploughing match will be held on September 8 at Ty Draw Farm, St Mary Church, Vale of Glamorgan CF62 4QL, by permission of Julian Radcliffe and family. Horse and steam engine ploughing will be demonstrated throughout the day. The judges for all classes have been appointed. All entries must be lodged by August 25 to be included in the event programme.

Further information on events and membership from the secretary on 01446 710610 or 07976 950680.

THE day after the recent fall of snow, Clive from Penarth and District Ramblers stayed close to home so travelling would be cut to a minimum, and met up with a group of 15 keen walkers at Cosmeston Country Park.

They set off in perfect walking conditions under blue skies while underfoot the ground was still frozen, and despite the bright sunshine, the temperature remained just below freezing for the whole walk.

Tramping beside the eastern lake with its wildfowl, the pathway led them on beside the remnants of the old landfill sites, which since Cosmeston was developed as a country park have become the east and western paddocks; and circumnavigating the top quarry they made for Cogan Wood.

Exiting and crossing the footbridge over Sully Brook, fields led them uphill where farm tracks brought them around the listed 19th century stone barn at Home Farm and over a stile for the journey along Cog Road into Sully village.

A low wall on the path into St John the Baptist Church afforded them seating for their refreshment break and refreshed, they crossed South Road passing the pretty Dunster Cottage following the pathway southwards to Sully Bay.

With glorious clear views out into the Bristol Channel to the islands of Flat and Steep Holm, they joined part of the Wales Coast Path and headed above the rocky beach along the public art trail to reach Swanbridge.

Between the 16th and 18th centuries, a small but active port was sited at Swanbridge which exported and imported goods across the Bristol Channel. Passing the delightful Swanbridge House, once part of the Bute family estate, they continued along St Mary's Well Bay Road.

Re-entering Cosmeston, they passed Cosmeston Medieval Village, a reinvention of a mid-14th century medieval village after the site of an actual medieval village was discovered during excavations in 1978, when the park was being created.

Circumnavigating the western lake and following Mile Road, originally built by the Bute family, they returned to their start past the animal, fish and bird sculpture and the recently established wooden footbridge and roundhouse, after a very pleasant half day walk.

On February 16, meet at 8.30am at Cogan Leisure Centre for a 10-mile hard walk from Llangattock taking in the Lonely Shepherd, Twr Pen-Cyrn and the old tramroad; contact Barrie on 029 2053 0753.

On February 17, meet at 9am at Cogan for a 7.5-mile moderate circular coastal walk from Oxwich to Port Eynon with lunch in the Ship Inn at the halfway stage; contact Robin on 029 2051 4051.

Wear suitable clothing, preferably boots and carry waterproofs, food and drinks. Some degree of fitness is required and if you are in any doubt, then please contact the leader for advice. Saying 'ta-ta' to the Tonka

IN what might be a blink-and-you'll-miss-it moment, the RAF's venerable, and recently-retired, Tornado will be making a circuit of the UK beginning next week, and taking in Cardiff Airport, MoD St Athan and Pembrey Sands en route.

The flight is due – always with the caveats of aircraft serviceability and fair weather dependent – to reach MoD St Athan next Wednesday (February 20). The scheduled time is yet to be released.

The Panavia Tornado (designed and built by the UK, West Germany, and Italy; the French pulled out) entered service with the RAF in 1979, but only drew blood some 12 years later in the Gulf War. She has reportedly been on ops constantly for all bar 18 days since 1991.

The Tonka, as she is affectionately known, was retired from operational service earlier this month, when the last aircraft, stationed in Cyprus, returned from sorties against Daesh just days before as part of Op Shader. She will be officially withdrawn at the end of March.

However, Tonka fans take heart; a Tornado GR1 will soon be making an appearance in the Vale.

See a future edition of The GEM for more details.

PETER Farrelly will be best known for directing, along with his brother Bobby, the likes of Dumb and Dumber and There's Something About Mary, comedies that make his first solo venture into directing something of a surprise.

Green Book is a world away from those coarse comedies, telling the true story of Tony Vallelonga (Viggo Mortensen), a man who, having been brought up working the nightclubs of the Tri-State area, finds himself in a job as driver for pianist Dr Don Shirley (Mahershala Ali).

Taking the doctor to the Deep South (an area, in 1962, that was in many places segregated and less than tolerant of non-white people), the pair see first-hand the divisions of the United States and slowly learn from each other...

The set-up for Green Book is a shopworn one. After all, how many stories can be told, how many films made, about people from different backgrounds learning tolerance and respect in a world that, more often than not, affords at least one of the characters little or none?

So by rights, this should be a paint-by-numbers film that, come the credits, will leave you feeling that overwhelming sense of over-familiarity.

Yet under the direction of Peter Farrelly and the magnetic and absorbing lead turns from Viggo Mortensen and Mahershala Ali, Green Book is far more than the sum of its parts, a touching, emotional and at times powerfully compelling look at a time not so long ago.

SCREEN TALK with GARETH JAMIESON

Peter Farrelly would be one of the last people you would expect to be tackling material like this, but his background means that the film takes a lighter touch than expected. Farrelly shows a great sensitivity in his direction, and invests the central relationship between Tony and Don with plenty of depth.

What it also means is that when trouble arrives in the shape of racist policemen or bar patrons, you get a short, sharp jolt to remind that it's not all fun and games and life lessons; that there is historical significance and weight to this story.

Mortensen and Ali have both been Oscar-nominated for this film (Mortensen for lead actor, Ali for supporting actor) and it's their performances and their chemistry that help to make this film so satisfying.

Mortensen's Tony is shady but decent, a man trying to do his best for his family with what he was given, and he sees his job with Shirley as a way to keep doing that.

What is pleasantly surprising is that normally in these films, we see the rough edges of this type of character sanded away with little subtlety. Here, through Mortensen's wonderful turn, we see a character slowly and gently altering his world view, his eyes opened by life on the road and the experiences of others.

Ali, meanwhile, is absolutely magnetic here, the character of Shirley a complicated, layered one that the actor essays to perfection with a stilted and haughty air that gives way to emotional vulnerability underneath.

While this is a world that Tony has hardly seen, high-class parties and rarified individuals keen to praise at the altar of such a talented musician, Ali conveys brilliantly the fact that this is a world he is all too keenly aware of – a world where he can play piano in a restaurant but be barred from eating there because of the colour of his skin, be applauded by audiences who see his ability through eyes that all too quickly lose their colourblindness once he leaves his piano.

It is both uplifting and heartbreaking at the same time, and it's wholly driven by the two central turns.

At 130 minutes, it's a film that perhaps drags a little bit, while the climax of the film, which should be positive and affirming, lacks that emotional punch, especially given how well it's taken you on this story of these two disparate characters. However, Green Book is still a wonderful film, and its engaging power makes it one to seek out.

VERDICT: Peter Farrelly's move from gross-out comedy to more serious fare feels effortless (in fact, it's the best thing he's put his name to in nearly 20 years) as Green Book is a powerful and compelling story that benefits greatly from his light touch.

The performances from Viggo Mortensen and Mahershala Ali are exceptional, and some slips aside, this is a superb piece of filmmaking. Highly recommended.

Barry Railway brought to life in new book

A 'BARRY Railway Drawings Book' has been published covering the locomotives and rolling stock of the Barry Railway, which operated in south Wales from 1888 until 1922.

It is the second volume in the Welsh Railway Records series.

At the heart of the book are drawings by Mike Lloyd and Trefor Jones which were published in the railway press many years ago. Now those drawings have been brought together in one volume. They include drawings of all classes of Barry Railway locomotives, examples of coaches, wagons, vans and brake vans.

There are also new drawings of the Barry Railway motor car, a type of steam railcar, which ran on the Vale line between Barry and Llantwit Major.

The book is a mine of information about Barry Railway and includes an authoritative index of all the locomotives and rolling stock used by the railway in its 34-year history, which includes the numbers of every locomotive, coach and wagon, their date of construction and the names of the builders who manufactured them.

If you are interested in the book there is more information at www.wrrc.org.uk.

A Fair Lady arrives at The Paget Rooms

THE Concept Players return to the Paget Rooms this month with probably the most famous musical of all time, My Fair Lady.

This popular Lerner and Loewe musical made a star out of Julie Andrews and went on to be an Oscar-winning film. It follows the machinations of Henry Higgins, who has bet his friend, Colonel Pickering, that he can take a common Cockney flower seller, Eliza Doolittle, and pass her off as a lady.

Eliza is keen as she wants to improve her prospects: but the path to becoming a lady is not smooth.

The show is packed full of great songs such as 'Wouldn't It Be Loverly', 'With a Little Bit of Luck', 'The Rain in Spain', 'Get Me to the Church on Time', 'On the Street Where You Live' and, of course, 'I Could Have Danced All Night'.

My Fair Lady opens at the Paget Rooms on Thursday, February 28 and runs to March 2.

Box office: 029207 08037 or online at www.concept-players.com. All performance are at 7:30pm, tickets £12.

Beekeeping going computerised?

News from the Fonmon Apiary

WINTER did put in a brief appearance, and it certainly put a stop to any external activity of the colonies.

However, with westerly winds now replacing the northerly winds, plus the rising temperatures, all of the colonies are venturing out and returning with pollen.

The monitoring of the varroa mite is still ongoing and when I study the debris that falls through the mesh floors into the collecting trays, the presence of immature mites informs me that the queens must be laying: laying queens equal laying mites!

As yet, I have resisted the temptation to open up any of the colonies to check for eggs and larvae. Some days have been suitable, but it is best to leave things well alone for now and leave the bees to run things.

The cleaning of hive sections and frames is well under way now, all old comb is removed from the wooden frames and the empty frames are put into a steam cleaner and this kills off any of the eggs that the dreaded wax moth may have laid in them. The steamer is made up of a water boiler (discarded tea urn) with the lid adapted to accept the hose from a wallpaper stripper, it works superbly.

To preserve the drawn combs that will be put to use very shortly, they are stored in large plastic storage boxes with secure lids. These will prevent access of the moth and with a container of acetic acid in with them this will ensure that any eggs will not hatch out into larvae. Wax moth larvae will very rapidly render your drawn combs unusable.

A new season is upon us and I will have a PhD student visiting the hives with me. The purpose of the student's visits is to record and collect molecules given off by the inhabitants of the hives and analyse them using gas chromatography. This is going to open up a subject of which I have very little knowledge. It has long been a desire of mine to introduce a monitoring system that will provide the levels of sound, temperature and humidity within a colony, but as yet I don't really know how to get to grips with the electronics that will be required.

Being able to record these variables onto an SD card for study on a computer can only improve our knowledge of the internal machinations within and reduce the practice of opening up the colony to the detriment of the occupants.

Barry church choir sings in St Paul's

ON a cold and frosty Friday morning on December 29, the choir of All Saints' Barry departed for London.

That evening was to be a momentous occasion in the choir's history as, for the first time, following weeks of preparation, they were to sing choral Evensong at St Paul's Cathedral in the heart of the City of London.

Choral Evensong is a 45-min long peace-inducing church service in which the 'song' of voices sounding together in harmony is heard at the 'even' point between the active day and restful night, allowing listeners time for contemplation; church members, agnostics and atheists alike.

It is both free of charge and free of religious commitment, and its 470-year-old choral music tradition, established around 1549, is performed live and often to a very high standard.

Arriving at 2pm that day, choristers spent most of the afternoon rehearsing the music which included 'Alyeward Reponses,' Canticles by William Harris in A Major and an anthem, 'The Christmas Lullaby,' by John Rutter.

What was even more awe-inspiring was the fact that the usual Evensong congregation, which usually totals no more than 20 people in attendance, grew to a staggering 1,500 people, with the choir's beautiful sound ringing around the walls of this ancient building.

The choirmaster of All Saints', James Bull, was delighted with the effort each and every chorister put into the polished performance: "It will remain a memorable day in the choir's history, and we were very grateful for the tremendous support we received from parishioners."

The choristers range in age from 16 to 80 years old and all willingly give up their time to lead the worship at All Saints', Barry, freely. In April 2019 they continue their travels by singing at Exeter Cathedral for the weekend.

Shutterbugs' winter is warmed away by pictures of foreign climes

THE Vale Photographic Club's Pam and Cled Lewis, two of the longest standing members, presented a fact-filled and gloriously photographed tour of India and Burma that left everyone longing to book their tickets to visit.

Johnnie Rogers gave a superb talk on his passion for monochrome images, demonstrating the artistic and thought-provoking nature of the genre.

The following week, members were invited to bring images for constructive critique. This is an event that is held a couple of times each year and is rising steadily in popularity.

The club is friendly, with more experienced members happy to pass on knowledge and expertise. What is also exciting is that newer members are happy to chip in and add a new perspective to looking at images, while developing their critical skills.

The month was rounded off by the annual competition 'Three in Harmony', judged by Mike Davies. This year there were more entries than ever before, with Guy Butler Madden the winner, with images of frost covered leaves.

The Vale Photographic Club meets on Friday evenings at Ystradowen Village Hall between 7.30pm and 9.30pm. Non members welcome; see website www.vale-photographic-club.co.uk.

Cost of firefighters' pensions will push up council tax

SOUTH Wales Fire and Rescue Service will take more money from each of its 10 areas in case firefighter pension increases are not funded by UK Government.

The South Wales Fire and Rescue Service approved a budget of nearly £75m instead of the recommended lower budget of just under £72m for 2019-20.

This means the contribution from each of the 10 areas will go up by just over five per cent from last year compared to a rise of 0.93 per cent if they had opted for the lower increase.

From 2019 to 2023, South Wales Fire and Rescue Service's pension contribution is expected to go up by nearly 10 per cent – or nearly £3m, which is 4 per cent of its total budget.

The authority says that they still don't know if this increase will be funded by central government.

The South Wales Fire Service treasurer Chris Barton told members HM Treasury had changed the way firefighters' pensions are valued but that they had had confirmation of funding in England.

When councils were consulted about whether to set a lower or higher budget given the uncertainty over pensions, five voted for higher and five for lower.

Rhondda Cynon Taf, Merthyr Tydfil, Torfaen, Monmouthshire and Newport favoured a lower rise with Cardiff, Bridgend, Blaenau Gwent, Caerphilly and the Vale of Glamorgan backing a higher rise.

Mr Barton said that if they approve a higher budget, then they send the message to central government that they can afford it.

He said: "I am recommending a lower level on the assumption that we get funding but if it doesn't come, then we will have to revisit. Consideration will be given to a supplementary budget if central government funding is not subsequently confirmed."

Mr Barton said that councils are absolutely aware of the risks that setting a lower budget could mean the authority comes back to ask for additional money.

The authority agreed that if the funding does come forward from central government, officers will be given the power to make sure councils are reimbursed for the higher rise in their contributions.

Eight voted in favour of the higher increase, with seven voting against.

In terms of their individual contributions to the budget and the increase since last year, the approved budget for BCBC and the Vale would be in Bridgend, £7.019m (a 4.94 per cent increase) and in the Vale of Glamorgan, £6.29m (a 4.76 per cent increase).

Valeways walkers are tackling stress

THE walking group Valeways recently enjoyed the sun at Cosmeston Park, and tackled stress at the same time.

A spokeswoman said: "Psychotherapist Noel McDermott said there are some simple steps to improving your mental wellbeing. They include: getting enough sleep, meditation, doing housework, gardening, ignoring your phone, getting a pet, smiling, getting more friends, exercise and going outside.

"While it may not be possible to alter your body clock to get more sleep, the Living with Cancer strollers can help you smile more, get exercise outside and meet more friends!

"February's stroll around Cosmeston certainly made everyone smile as the sun shone, then showers nearly caught us and mud pools were avoided. We took a new route to take in the new bridge.

"If you prefer a leisurely walk in good company rather than improving your wellbeing by hoovering, or tidying the garden, then join us at Cosmeston on the first Thursday of every month at 10.30am. For more information about walking and volunteering with Valeways, visit www.valeways.org.uk"

"Vale Council services are under threat because of reduced Welsh Government funding," says managing director

MANAGING director Rob Thomas has warned that Vale Council services are under "serious threat" as a consequence of reduced funding.

The council has made savings of £55 million in the last nine years and needs to find a further £15m in the next three years. Of a reported annual budget of £225m, a saving of £5m a year represents around 2.2 per cent.

Reductions in funding provided by the Welsh Government, inflation and increasing pressures in services have left a shortfall between the cost of running council services and the money available to spend.

Council Tax rose by 3.9 per cent in the Vale last year in order to help bridge this gap; that was among the smallest increases in Wales, with many local authorities opting for a far more dramatic rise.

Speaking to BBC Wales Today, Mr Thomas stressed there will be serious consequences unless there is an acknowledgement of the value and importance of a range of local services provided by the council as well as a recognition of the increasing costs associated with providing them.

These services range from social care to education as well as public transport, neighbourhood services, environmental health, planning, economic development and housing. "I sympathise with residents because people are paying more, council tax is increasing," he said.

"The simple fact is, it's increasing because the money we get from Welsh Government is decreasing. We need to fill the gap, but this isn't filling the gap completely and much-valued public services are under real threat if the situation continues."

The £151.923m Welsh Government funding the council is expected to get in 2019/20 represents a reduction of 0.7 per cent, or £1.037m, from the previous year.

In real terms, when taking into account inflation and other factors such as national pay inflation and the non-funded teachers' pension scheme, the budget reduction is more like 4.2 per cent.

Mr Thomas added: "As a council, we have been creative in coping with the difficult situation we find ourselves in. Rather than close libraries, for instance, we have made arrangements for them to be managed by the communities which they serve.

"We are also exploring similar initiatives in other areas. This includes working with partners across the region in delivering social care, developing shared services in important areas like environmental health to build resilience and cut costs and working with other councils across the region to attract investment and good quality jobs.

"However, the situation is getting increasingly difficult and there is a need for an urgent acknowledgement that in order to continue to deliver vital local services, local councils need to be funded adequately."

The GEM contacted Cllr Neil Moore, leader of the Vale Council under the previous administration, for his thoughts.

He said: "I have read the Vale Council's managing director's comments on the financial position facing the Council and local government as a whole, and in general terms, I would concur with many issues raised.

"Local government has been seriously underfunded for many years and services are under 'serious threat' as a consequence. I am surprised that the quotes come from an officer of the council and not the Leader, when the responsibility for managing and setting the budget rests squarely on the Leader's shoulders.

"Perhaps this is a way of the Conservatives in the Vale blaming others, before they raise the council tax to higher levels. It is also interesting that the managing director refers to the previous 'Labour' Council's initiative of setting up community libraries as an example of good practice of alternative service provisions, but what isn't said is that the Conservatives opposed it at the time.

"I challenge the contention that the lack of funding is the fault of the Labour Welsh Government. The reality is that local services have been protected in Wales, because Labour has not cut local government funding to the extent that Conservatives in Westminster have done. "The real fault lies with the Westminster Government, which has continually starved councils throughout the UK. A recent United Nations report said as much.

"Despite the Prime Minister and her Cabinet colleagues claiming otherwise, 'austerity' is still with us.

"The current Conservative Leader of the Vale Council previously did not agree that the council should be campaigning against austerity.

"However, reality seems to have struck home. Regrettably, local people are having to use foodbanks and the council is failing to make promised savings they agreed to make.

"Instead the Conservative [-led] council is trying to inflict punitive parking charges on residents to make up their deficit as well as setting the scene for increases in Council Tax, which is ironic when they had previously argued for a zero-per-cent rise while in opposition.

"Their financial management is an utter disgrace and this is not a good time for the citizens of the Vale of Glamorgan."

The Buffs are on hand to help the watchers

MEMBERS of the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes (Buffs) Glamorgan South Province cover an area that includes Cardiff and Barry in the south, to Maesteg and Bridgend in the north, and recently they headed to Nells Point, Barry.

The Buffs had heard that the National Coastwatch Institute (NCI) in Barry were trying to purchase a new pair of binoculars for the station, which is run by volunteers.

The NCI is a national group of volunteers who scan the seas and liaise with the RNLI and the Coastguard to keep our sea shores safe for all who use them.

The NCI relies on volunteers and a total of £1,417 was collected during 2018 by the Buffs.

Coastguards are fundraising

BARRY Coastguard is raising £300 to help Autism Puzzle, the Coastguard Association and Mind Blue Light programme.

Following the success of last year when we raised over £900 for these causes, crew members from Llantwit and Barry CRT are entering events throughout the year to continue raising funds, as well as the usual 10k events.

Nick from Barry CRT is attempting to run a half marathon every month for 2019! Autism Puzzles Cymru is a charity that supports families who have children who have been diagnosed with autism.

The Mind BlueLight Program supports the emergency services with mental health guidance and information.

The Coastguard Association supports retired and serving coastguards and their families who are in need of help or support.

An evening with the dinosaurs gives Noah's Ark a big boost

A BARRY mother has staged a highly successful fundraising night in aid of the hospital that helped her baby niece to survive a life-threatening condition.

Lauren Farnham of Barry organised the black tie event in the National Museum, Cardiff, and raised the sum of £5,500 for The Noah's Ark Children's Hospital charity.

The night involved a magician, Jack Phillips and live music from band Groove Conspiracy on arrival, a three-course meal, singing entertainment from Lauren and three friends Rhiannon Rose-Goodsir, Shane Rose-Goodsir and Michael Bennett, accompanied by Emma Arscott, and dance entertainment from fitness troop Turn'd Up Fitness.

Guests were photographed on arrival by photographer Phil Darmanin.

The night also included a prize draw with the top prize of vouchers for Fish and Chips and the Hilton Hotel donated by Fryer Tuck Fish and Chip shop in Barry, there were 25 prizes in total, included signed memorabilia, donated by Lauren's family, local businesses and Welsh celebrities. This was vital to helping the event raise such a large amount.

Lauren said: "The Noah's Ark Children's Hospital charity is so close to my heart as my niece Eden-Olive spent the first year of her life there and underwent a series of operations to correct a potentially fatal condition she was born with – oesophageal astesia.

ABOVE: Eden-Olive was the star guest.

"A special piece of equipment called the Nathanson Liver Retractor had to be ordered for one of Eden-Olive's procedures and this was very expensive. My aim is to raise enough funds to pay back the cost of this so it can be used to help other children and families in need."

Eden-Olive was guest of honour on the night and Eden, her brother Jesse and her friend Sonny - who she met at Noah's Ark, even had a private tour of the dinosaurs after hours!

Lauren said: "My fundraising mission would not have been possible if it wasn't for the people who helped and donated their time and services and, of course, for all the people who attended or bought prize draw tickets."

She added: "The night was sponsored by the Cardiff based creative design agency Design Dough who supplied Posters for the event, the prize draw tickets and the menu and really helped to give the event the professional look."

Lauren and her three friends sang for the audience.

AM enquires on status of M4–A48 link road

ANDREW RT Davies has asked the Welsh Government if the recent change of First Minister will have any impact on its plans to build a new link road in the Vale.

The South Wales Central AM put the question to Finance Minister Rebecca Evans at the National Assembly.

He said the Government and Vale Council have proposed building a road from Sycamore Cross to the M4 in Miskin.

Mr Davies said: "We've had a change of Government - not a change of party - with a new First Minister.

"It would be interesting, certainly for residents in the area affected, to know whether there has been any change of policy in the transport plan.

"Residents would like to understand if there's any change in planning and about the support that might come from Welsh Government to pay for this project."

Ms Evans said it might be appropriate for Mr Davies to write to Transport Minister Ken Skates to get the clarity he was seeking on behalf of his constituents.

Rallying call to help British farmers

THE Farming Community Network (FCN) is looking to establish a new group in Glamorgan, and is looking for new volunteers to help the charity sustain its support for farmers and farming families.

FCN, which has been providing practical and pastoral care to the farming community for 22 years, is keen to recruit anyone who is passionate about supporting the farming community to join the network.

The charity is preparing for what it is anticipating will be a significant increase in workload over the coming years, with Britain preparing to leave the European Union.

David Williams, Wales Regional Director of FCN, said: "As a charity, we have already been approached by farmers concerned about the impact of Brexit on their farm businesses and we are expecting more approaches like this in the coming years.

"Anyone who is keen to help the farming community and is passionate about protecting the future of British farming can sign up as a volunteer.

"Training will be provided to all new volunteers, you can donate as little or as much time as you like and you will be fully supported in your role. Volunteering with FCN is an extremely rewarding experience and I cannot recommend it enough."

More information about volunteering with FCN is available at www.fcn.org.uk/volunteering, from where you can also download a volunteer application form.

The search is on for the next generation of rural leaders and entrepreneurs

HAVE you got what it takes to be a rural leader, an innovator or entrepreneur? Are you determined and focused about working in the agriculture, forestry or food related industries and professions?

Farming Connect's recruitment campaign for the 2019 intake of Agri Academy candidates is now open. Lesley Griffiths, Minister for Environment, Energy and Rural Affairs, officially launched Farming Connect'spersonal development programme, Agri Academy 2019, at the Farmers' Union of Wales annual farmhouse breakfast at the Pierhead Building, Cardiff Bay on January 22.

The Agri Academy, now in its seventh year and with 200 alumni, brings together some of the most promising people making their way in the agricultural industry in Wales today, giving them the inspiration, confidence, skills and contacts they need to become future rural leaders, professional business people, innovators and entrepreneurs.

Comprising three distinct elements, the Agri Academy's Rural Leadership programme, a collaboration with the Royal Welsh Agricultural Society, aims to develop and nurture a new generation of leaders. The Business and Innovation programme offers personal and business development to help meet the challenges of farming in the future, while the Junior Academy, run in partnership with Wales YFC, is targeted at youngsters aged 16-19 considering a career in the food and farming industries.

The Minister, who attended a special reception at last year's Winter Fair hosted by graduates from all three elements of the programme, said: "The Agri Academy has a fantastic track record of paving the way to business and career success for so many of its alumni.

"These individuals, who are selected because of their drive, focus and commitment to rural affairs in Wales, are certainly repaying our investment in their personal development, which can be attributed to the Agri Academy's unique combination of mentoring, training, targeted high-level networking and study visits in both Wales and Europe.

"Many of them are now actively helping drive forward rural affairs in Wales, making sure their voices are heard and opinions known. With Brexit approaching it is more important than ever that we support our farming industry in every way we can. Farming Connect will be pivotal in ensuring those in the industry are given every possible tool to be successful in the challenges they face."

The application window for Agri Academy 2019 opened on January 22 and will close on March 31. Eligibility is open to business partners, immediate family members (spouses, sons and daughters) and employees (on PAYE) of Farming Connect registered businesses.

Farming Connect is funded by the Welsh Government and the European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development.

New book looks at Newport's history

JAN Preece is the author of the recently-published Newport Transporter Bridge and Industry Along the River, published by Amberley Publishing at £14.99.

The book tells how the bridge was built to meet the demands of industry which had grown to include the east bank of the Usk.

The stretch of the River Usk close to the bridge has its own rich industrial heritage, from cottage industries of tin makers to shipping and the railways.

With a wealth of rare and previously unpublished images, the author, who was born and bred in Pillgwenly, Newport in the 1940s, tells how these two interconnected stories form crucial parts of Newport's history.

This 96-page paperback is a must for those interested in Newport's past.

Asda Barry show their support for Bobath charity

ASDA Barry has donated £200 to Bobath Barry, as part of the store's ongoing commitment to supporting the local community through their Green Coin Giving (GCG) scheme.

Asda's community colleague Lynette Griffin, based at the Barry store, handed over the cheque to representatives Angela Parsons, Jamie Evans and Melisse Jones who work at Bobath's Barry shop. The money will be used to support the charity's work with the children's therapy centre, helping them with occupational and speech therapy.

Lynette Griffin said: "We are always keen to support local charities. They are doing a fantastic job helping to improve children's lives."

If you would like to be part of Asda's GCG or know of a local charity or local good cause, get in touch with Lynette Griffin at Asda Barry, CF62 5AT or contact her on 01446 728335 ext 222 for further details.

The Small Space strikes a crafty deal

BARRY'S 'The Small Space' theatre is to get its very own craft lager.

Co-owner Jasper Blakeley explained the deal was struck after staff from Tomos a Lilford Brewery in the Vale enjoyed a visit to popular, bijou venue.

He explained: "They were so excited after a visit to one of our resident magicians' shows that the brewery asked if they could create our very own The Small Space craft lager.

"The exact flavour, strength and design of the drink is yet to be finalised, but what we can say, after a recent tasting, is that it's going to be delicious.

"We'll be launching the lager in early April at a special event and we look forward to all our customers coming along to try it out."

Age-related arthritis: Irreversible end of pain-free living?

ARTHRITIS is a common condition which causes pain, swelling, inflammation and often stiffness in the joints of the body.

Sadly, many sufferers are told: "There is nothing that can be done outside surgery."

However, the gentle manipulative and massage approach taken by osteopaths can help many arthritis sufferers.

Treatment is individual, gently moving and stretching an arthritic joint and massaging surrounding muscles and tissues can help ease some of the discomfort.

This can often be enough to reduce pain and restore function for day-to-day activities.

For example, someone with an arthritic shoulder who couldn't raise the arm may, after a few weeks' treatment, be able to lift a kettle or raise the arm high enough so that hair can be comfortably brushed.

"Osteopathy is not limited to treating patients with arthritis.

"If you are uncertain, give me a ring, tell me your complaint, and we'll chat over the options," said Robert David, M.Ost

Low-cost nail-cutting service is now available

AGE Connects Cardiff & Vale provide a low-cost nail-cutting service to provide basic foot care services to older people in the local community.

We work from clinics throughout Cardiff and the Vale, with our St Athan clinic now running fortnightly, and a new clinic in Penarth, at Trinity Church.

The service is provided by our nail-cutting assistants who are trained by the Cardiff & Vale University health board.

There are no age restrictions and the service is available to anyone who is unable to cut their own toe nails (certain health restrictions apply) at a cost of only £13 per session.

For further information call 02922 331113.

Passmores asks 'Have you made your will yet?

EVERY adult in the UK should consider making a will, and here are some of the reasons why:

* Without a will, the state directs who inherits your estate, so the people you wish to benefit may get nothing.

* Without a will, if you are married, you may think that your estate will pass to your spouse in any event, but this is not necessarily the case.

* If you are not married to your partner, the law does not automatically recognise partners as having the same rights as husbands, wives and civil partners, and your partner may get nothing.

* If you have children, there may be uncertainty about who will look after or provide for them, should you die.

* Certain people could make a claim on your estate if you have no will, because they may depend upon you financially.

* Inheritance tax issues may arise if not addressed in your will.

Wills should be kept up to date and renewed upon any change of circumstances; for example, marriage, divorce, separation, death of a loved one, or upon having a child.

Excluding certain beneficiaries in your will may also cause potential difficulties as they may have the right to make a claim against your estate.

Special care is needed if you exclude persons who might expect to benefit under your will.

Ensure that you have a will in place and that it is up to date, to avoid any undesired consequences and complications.

Carli Evans is a solicitor with Messrs Passmores Solicitors and a member of Solicitors for the Elderly, a specialist panel of solicitors dealing with elderly client matters and the Society of Trust and Estate Practitioners.

Do you need help to look after your feet? The Foot Clinic can help...

AS we age we naturally develop more problems with our feet.

Age related health changes such as arthritis may bring joint changes, skin may become dry and fragile, nails may become in-grown or thicken making them difficult and painful. Foot problems can be debilitating and impact on the quality of our life. Seemingly small problem areas of concern can lead to pain and loss of mobility.

It is therefore vital to improve and maintain our foot health. Diseases, such as type 2 diabetes, more prevalent with the passing years, requires special attention. Simple interventions such as podiatry/chiropody can have a surprising impact on function. An assessment can identify problem areas.

We are friendly and approachable at the Foot Clinic and no concern is too small. Ring us on 01446 793040 for advice, or to make an appointment with an experienced and fully qualified podiatrist.

The benefits of owning a cat...

HOW many people realise there are beneficial effects to owning a cat, or even just being in its company?

It has been proved that just smoothing a cat can have a calming effect on the body, lowering your blood pressure.

If you have aged parents or relatives who live on their own, they will feel less lonely in the company of a cat. They will have something to talk to, and it will give them something to focus on.

Children brought up with cats suffer from fewer allergies. It is so sad that when someone becomes pregnant, they are sometimes advised to get rid of their cat. You can pick up more diseases by eating seafood and meat that has not been thoroughly cooked etc. Hygiene is the key word!

Children who grow up with cats will have more respect for animals and people as they get older; it gives them responsibility and companionship.

We have lots of cats in Maesteg Animal Welfare Society looking for permanent homes; some have already been discarded for mundane reasons. They are not disposable items, they are looking for care and affection.

You can help us by giving a cat a loving home, or perhaps a donation through PayPal: maesteganimalwelfaresociety@yahoo.com.

Care In The Vale - it's all about the people!

AT Care in the Vale we believe care agencies should not only understand the reasons why people need care (illness or old age, perhaps), but also the life experiences that make each person unique, interesting and valuable.

We should not hide behind uniforms or concepts such as 'professional distance' but be real people with a close interest in others.

We should be driven not so much by 'professionalism' but by our sense of 'shared humanity': ie what one human being does for another.

Our goal should be to leave people happier at the end of our visits than when we arrived. Happier because they have been well looked after by people who care for them and are interested in them.

It's all about people!

Valeways Strollers are walking for wellbeing

DON'T stop! That's the best advice for retirees – and walking charity Valeways finds that Vale citizens have made it their motto.

Co-ordinator Rebecca Exley, who leads many of the walks around Cowbridge, said: "Coffee Shop Strollers, who meet on Wednesdays, are the fastest growing sector of all our activities. Walking is friendly, good for health and heart and great for blowing away the cobwebs.

"The Strollers' groups meet for regular short (one hour) walks, a chat and coffee in Cowbridge, Llantwit, Barry and Cosmeston. Walk leaders are on hand to guide the way, talk about interesting features en route, and solve any problems."

Popularity is growing so fast that there are plans to add a Penarth walk, in April.

Rebecca said: "If the gym isn't for you, this is a great way to find your feet and lead a more active life. Our most senior stroller is 95!"

The next Valeways Coffee Shop Strollers Walks take place at:

Barry, Bridge Café Car Park at 10.30am on February 20 and March 6 and 20; Cosmeston at 10.30am on February 27 and March 13 and 27; Cowbridge Physic Garden at 2.30pm on February 20 and March 6 and 20; Llantwit Major Town Hall at 2.30pm on February 27 and March 13 and 27.

Walk and Chat with Mind, Traveller's Café, Barry Station at 10am on 1 March; Living with Cancer Strollers, Cosmeston at 10.30am on March 7.

Buddy is looking for a human of his own

BUDDY is a bright three-year-old crossbreed who has so much love to give who adores human company and enjoys plenty of cuddles.

Buddy would prefer to be walked in quiet areas where he can relax and explore to his heart's content. He can live with children eight years and over, but would need to be the only pet in the home.

Canine Carer Hannah said: "Buddy is looking for a best friend to enjoy long walks with. He is a true gent and his charming personality is sure to make you fall in love with him."

Llandough PACT at The Royal British Legion, Penlan Road Llandough on Monday, February 18 at 7pm.

A Coffee & Chat will be held at the Victoria Inn Sigingstone on Tuesday, February 19 at 11am.

Fair Bake coffee

THIS year, Fairtrade Fortnight will be held between February 25 and March 10 and to celebrate, Barry Town Council's Fairtrade advisory committee in partnership with Cadoxton Methodist Church will host a Fair Bake coffee morning.

Members of the public are invited to enjoy the Fairtrade coffee, tea and cake that will be on offer on Saturday, March 9 between 10am and 12pm at Cadoxton Methodist Church, Church Road, Barry (CF63 1JX). There is no charge for the event, although donations are welcome. For more information contact info@barrytowncouncil.gov.uk or 01446 738663.

St David's Day concert

COR Meibion Maesteg ar Cylch will this year make their annual concert the St David's day celebration at Maesteg Town hall on Saturday, March 2 commencing at 7pm.

The guest for this year's concert will be the celebrated tenor Wynne Evans, who will be making his second appearance at the Town Hall and who so thrilled the audience previously: this makes for an excellent concert.

Wynne has sung in many different countries and has walked out onto the turf of the Millennium Stadium, after the All Blacks performed the Haka, carrying the Welsh flag and singing 'Cwm Rhondda'. Huw Morgan has produced an excellent programme for the choir and the finale will be something really special – which will be a first for the choir but will I'm sure bring the house down.

Come along and enjoy a first class night of entertainment; tickets are now on sale at the Town Hall box office or any choir member.

Market day in Llantwit

THE next market day in Llantwit Major takes place on Saturday, March 3.

Those interested in running stalls should contact Llantwit Major events group on Facebook.

T-Rex tribute band

TRIBUTE band T.Rextasy coming to Memo Centre, Barry, on Saturday, March 9.

Accepted as the world's only official live tribute band dedicated to Marc Bolan & T.Rex, and the only band endorsed and approved by Marc Bolan's family, estate, original ex-members of T.Rex, and Bolan's catalogue management, T.Rextasy have been described by many as 'beyond the boundaries of tribute'. They have been performing all over the world for more than 25 years, a career that ironically out-lives Marc's very own T.Rex.

PODS

PENARTH Operatic and Dramatic Society will perform their next play Witness for the Prosecution by Agatha Christie in the Paget Rooms, from March 20 - 22.

The stakes are high: will likeable Leonard Vole be found guilty of the heartless murder of Emily French? To find out book your tickets at ticketsource.co.uk/pods.

Llantwit Major Victorian Fair

LLANTWIT Major Victorian Fair will take place on Saturday, June 22 this year.

The Victorian Fair is held every two years and includes lots of entertainment, attractions and activities that are spread throughout the town. To book a stall for the day, contact Liz Evans at the following email: lizabeth13@hotmail.co.uk.

'Welsh businesses deserve better' says Vale MP

VALE MP Alun Cairns has expressed his disappointment in the Welsh Government's business rates announcement, which will still have many businesses in Wales paying thousands of pounds more in business rates than their counterparts in England.

Figures show that a business with a rateable value of £12,000 will pay a minimum of £3,260 more in Wales than in England, which Mr Cairns argues makes Wales a less attractive place to do business and less competitive.

Under the UK Government's business rates relief scheme, businesses with a rateable value of up to £50,000 will receive a 1/3 cut in their rates. The Welsh Government has been given the funding by Westminster to implement the same rate relief in Wales.

The Welsh Government have since announced that under their High Street Rate Relief Scheme, businesses will be able to receive up to £2,500 relief on business rates and those with a rateable value of up to £9,100 are eligible to avoid paying any rates at all. In England, businesses with a rateable value of up to £12,500 are exempt from paying rates and the multiplier used to calculate the final bill is also smaller in England.

There is now widespread disappointment that the announcement by the new First Minister Mark Drakeford falls short of the commitment given to businesses in England. Mr Cairns has criticised the Welsh Government for continuing to impose the most expensive business rates anywhere in Britain, putting Welsh businesses at a strong disadvantage compared to their English counterparts.

The Welsh Conservative policy is that all businesses with a rateable value of up to £15,000 should receive 100 per cent rate relief.

The Vale MP said: "This announcement leaves many businesses in Wales at a disadvantage in comparison to businesses in England. We can see that there is an additional cost to traders in Wales of thousands of pounds, which makes a huge difference to the Vale's small businesses.

"It comes as no surprise that people locally are angry that the Welsh Labour Government are once again introducing policies which result in Wales being less competitive and a less attractive place to do business.

"The risk of a more hostile environment for business damages our local economy and stunts job growth. Meanwhile, the UK Conservative Government has worked to help business in Wales through measures like scrapping the Severn tolls. It's disappointing that while we are working to improve the economy in Wales, the Welsh Government is failing."

NFU Cymru backs call for farmers to Mind Your Head!

NFU Cymru is supporting this year's Mind Your Head campaign, organised by leading farming charity Farm Safety Foundation, to raise awareness and tackle the stigma of the growing issue of mental illness in farming.

Recent research by the charity reveals that 81 per cent of farmers under 40 believe that mental health is the biggest hidden problem facing farmers today and 92 per cent believe that promoting good mental health is crucial if lives are to be saved and farmers kept safe.

Throughout the week, the Farm Safety Foundation will be reminding farmers and farming families that Valentine's week, when we are supposed to celebrate love and togetherness, can sometimes highlight how different, alone, or low we feel and if that is the case, help is available. The Foundation will bring together key people, organisations and other charities to raise awareness of this mounting issue in the industry and build a community of support for those affected.

NFU Cymru president John Davies said: "We are backing Mind Your Head! as it's important to raise awareness of the issue in the industry. Farming can be a highly stressful occupation and the industry is exposed to a unique set of circumstances and stressors. Farming has the poorest safety record of any occupation in the UK and stress is often a key factor in many of the accidents, injuries and illnesses taking place on farms."

For more information on 'Mind Your Head' visit www.yellowwellies.org or follow @yellowwelliesUKon Twitter/Facebook.

Property of the week
Last chance to buy a new home in Aberthin

PERFECTLY placed amid beautiful surroundings, around a mile from Cowbridge, time is running out for buyers hoping to call Llanfair Meadow, Aberthin "home".

With good schools and an array of amenities nearby, location has driven buyers to the Edenstone Homes development, where the final two homes, both with four bedrooms, are on sale.

Prices are from £524,000 for a Zero Carbon Tewkesbury. There's also a double fronted Faringdon style property, priced at £529,000.

It features lounge and study either side of the main entrance, with the quiet calm of the lounge complemented by the open plan kitchen, dining and family room, which is very much a focal point that will be a hive of activity.

Upstairs, the master bedroom features a dressing room and en-suite, leaving the spacious family bathroom, with separate shower, to serve the remaining three bedrooms.

Call 07392 090258 or see edenstonehomes.com/aberthin-cowbridge for details.

Womens' Icelandic trek for charity

TWO women from Barry will trek in Iceland to raise funds for medical research.

Michelle Hunt (38) and Sarah Cayton (35) will be joined by 20 other people on the Iceland 2019 Fire and Ice Expedition this September. Their aim is to raise £5,000 for Cancer Research Wales.

Michelle and Sarah are also organising local fundraisers to help towards their total.

Michelle explained: "I have a lot of family in west Wales who have done fundraising in the past.

"My stepfather passed away at the age of 30. My mother overcame breast cancer and still has regular check-ups. My granddad passed away due to prostate cancer at the age of 59. My other granddad has been battling myeloma for five years and has been poorly.

"He is such a fighter. I want to make him proud and take on this challenge, and also for everyone else I've mentioned."

Sarah, whose father also recently overcame cancer, was keen to sign up too. Michelle said: "We would like to hit the target by June."

Sarah owns Cardio Core Fitness in Barry and Michelle, who works at Savills, is a part-time instructor there. It means the two women will be well prepared for the physical challenge.

The trail takes four days to complete, covering distances of between 16km and 24km each day.

Michelle explained: "We could be going from summer clothes to winter clothes in a matter of moments due to the very changeable Icelandic weather."

The two women are hosting an 'Old Skool Reunion' fundraiser at Bar Cocoa in Barry on Friday, April 5 to raise funds. It is for anyone who went to comprehensive school in Barry between 1985 and 1995.

Michelle and Sarah want to thank Scott Walters of Bar Cocoa for letting them have the venue for the reunion.

Susan's sweet success with Chwarae Teg

A BRIDGEND woman who changed her career is now urging other eligible women to sign up for a service that transformed her work life balance.

Susan Lee-Clements joined the Agile Nation 2 Career Development Programme run by Chwarae Teg, the Wales-based gender equality charity, back in 2018.

At the time Susan, 51, led a team at Thorntons and had worked in the retail sector for 34 years. Originally she joined the programme to boost her team building skills, but soon found that her store was facing closure.

She was able to continue with the programme, and gained the skills and confidence she needed to carve out a new career within Citizens Advice.

Susan said: "Thanks to Chwarae Teg and the encouragement and support I got from my fellow participants, I have had the confidence to grow and learn totally new skills. These include effective communication, conflict handling and personal development planning, all of which I put into practice when I started volunteering for Citizens Advice, learning how to support clients with benefit and debt queries.

"I have since successfully gained a part-time role with Citizens Advice as a project support worker on their new Financial Advice and Support Service."

People who are interested in taking part should call 0300 365 0445, email an2@chwaraeteg.com or visit www.agilenation2.org.uk.

Netball squad are the Welsh champions!

The under-16s squad who claimed the Welsh Championship.

The under-14s squad were split into two teams and finished first and second.

THE Cardiff and Vale under-16 netball squad travelled to Bangor University recently for the Welsh under-16 Inter-Counties Championships.

The squad of 25 players were selected in September from over 150 girls from all the secondary schools in Cardiff and the Vale.

The squads were split into the A team and the B team and both teams had a tough encounter to start against Glamorgan Valleys, but did not miss a beat after the opening game, beating South East Wales convincingly and then beating West Wales, Powys, North Wales and ANT.

The B squad were winning matches by huge goal margins and only needed to secure a win in the last match of the tournament to be named Welsh champions, which they did emphatically.

The A squad had to beat the North East to secure silver medal position and with both the Cardiff and Vale Squad and the North East having numerous Wales under-17 players, the girls had to pull on all their experience and mental toughness to secure the victory, which they did. All the secondary schools should be extremely proud of these young netballers and what they have achieved.

A squad: Elli Beddall (captain), Cardiff High School; Gwenno Manley (vice captain), Cardiff High School; Abbie Pattison, Corpus Christi High School; Mabli Evans, Ysgol Bro Ederyn; Naimh Sultana, Stanwell Comprehensive, Thea Mycroft, Cardiff High School; Roslyn Hill, Ysgol Glantaf; Georgia Hellerman, St Richard Gwyn High School; Rhian Dawes, Ysgol Bro Ederyn; Lowri Clarke, Ysgol Bro Ederyn; Catrin Roy, Cowbridge Comprehensive; Niamh Driscoll, Radyr Comprehensive.

B squad: Ella Forsyth (captain), Pencoedtre High School; Jessica Richards-Clode (vice captain), Ysgol Bro Ederyn; Tanisha Johnson (vice captain), Ysgol Bro Ederyn; Tyla Johnson, Ysgol Bro Ederyn; Alexa Browning, Cowbridge Comprehensive; Abbie Price, Llantwit Comprehensive; Annabelle Walters, Howells School; Rhiannon Thomas,Ysgol Glanfaf; Emily Backhouse, Corpus Christi High School; Hannah Rolands, Ysgol Plasmawr; Chloe Berrow, St Richard Gwyn High School; Elkie Warlow, Bishop of Llandaff; Abbie Morgan, Radyr Comprehensive.

Coach: Melanie Hellerman (Corpus Christie), Melissa Hunter (Stanwell Comprehensive).

The under-14 netball squad attended the Welsh under-14 Inter-Counties Championships on February 11 in Cardiff.

The squads were also split into the A team and the B team.

Both teams had a tough encounter to start against Glamorgan Valleys but came out victorious and showed great maturity and determination.

The squads won all their matches against, North West, Powys, South East, West Wales and ANT.

Both had tough encounters against the North East; the B victorious and the A just losing out. The A squad finished silver medal winners and the B Squad winners and Welsh Champions. Huge congratulations go to all the players and the schools they represent.

A squad: Carys Roy (captain), Cowbridge Comprehensive; Mali Davies (captain), Ysgol Glantaf; Katy Brain, Corpus Christi; Anna Miles, Stanwell; Harriet Henson, Cardiff High; Emily Savastano, Ysgol Glantaf; Isabella Wigley, Corpus Christi; Johannah Rogers, Corpus Christi; Maddelise Tiessen, Cowbridge Comprehensive; Betsy Thomas, Bro Ederyn; Lola Evans, Stanwell; Louise Cleall, Radyr.

B squad: Catrin Powell (captain), Ysgol Glantaf; Megan Hutchings (captain), Ysgol Glantaf; Martha Hurford, Cardiff High; Mali Cronk, Cathedral School; Carys Rees, St Johns; Chalise Colderley, Stanwell; Mia Gibbs, Stanwell; Lowri Pinnell, Corpus Christi; Lucy Harrison, Cathedral School; Jessica Plevey, St Richard Gwyn; Tilly Morgan, Cardiff High; Annie Isherwood, Stanwell.

Coach: Melanie Hellerman (Corpus Christi), Melissa Hunter (Stanwell).

Tyson Fury comes to Wales

TYSON Fury, the former unified heavyweight world champion, spoke at Cornerstones in Cardiff on Friday, February 8, at an event hosted by Brendan Lyons, founder of Lyons Den promotions.

He gave a passionate and poignant talk, engaging the audience with tales of his rise to the top of heavyweight boxing which he refers to as his 'first career,' before his well-published battles with mental health.

Tyson spent most of his time during his talk, giving a passionate account of how he overcame his mental health struggles through vigorous training and psychical fitness.

He also shared with the captivated audience his new outlook on life and how he spends more time with his family, handling his time, energy and the many demands of fame better than he had formerly.

Fury made clear his gratitude to be alive and explained that being sat before the audience in a healthy and happy frame of mind was indeed better than any amount of money earned from his fights, or any belt or accolade he has won throughout his career thus far.

The heavyweight said he is not afraid to fight Anthony Joshua, and he would happily take on Deontay Wilder again because doesn't like remarks Deontay has made regarding British fighters.

Fury has fought his hardest battles outside of the ring and showed the audience that afternoon that anything is possible with determination and hard work.

Holton Road enjoy cup success

HOLTON Road progressed to the Supporters Cup on a wet and windy Saturday afternoon.

It was perfect conditions for an epic cup battle with the league champions facing second-placed Tynewydd FC.

In typical cup style there were many twists and turns with Holton overcoming their spirited opponents 4-3 in a frantic end to end match.

At one point Holton were trailing 3-1.

Holton opened the scoring with Jack Cutajar calmly finishing a loose ball in the box, which spurredTynewydd into action and they scored three goals to potentially turn the tie on its head.

But when Linford Harris netted just before half-time the comeback was on.

Shaun Jachontow levelled the tie shortly after the break and this gave Holton the momentum to go on and snatch the tie with a fine finish from Ryan Hales sealing the victory.

Coach Jeff Howells said: "This was another test of the lads' resilience and never-give-up attitude.

"Tynewydd always give us a good challenge and this was no exception. They deserve a lot of credit for implementing a game plan to try and unsettle us but fortunately for us we held out for the win.

"We once again showed we can not only play decent football, but can also dig in when it matters.

"Well done lads, and thanks to everyone who supported us from the sidelines on a cold wintry afternoon."

Jeff added: "I am currently promoting a Gofund Me event for Holton Road AFC minis and juniors where I am sky diving 15,000 feet (maximum UK altitude) to raise funds for the club to give us financial stability and to pay for training equipment, facilities, coaches courses, medical supplies, the list goes on.

"We have approximately 150 youngsters registered with the club and 18 coaches so the costs of successfully running this are increasing each year; it would be nice to be able to cover some of these costs and take some pressure off the financial section of the club.

"I realise money can be tight but every small donation will be greatly appreciated.

"To donate please visit my Facebook page or click on the link in my bio on Instagram. Alternatively go directly to the Gofund Me website and search Holton Road Skydive link www.gofundme.com/holton-road-skydive.

"Many thanks."

Two out of two for Barry Chess Club

IT has been a quieter week for the Barry Chess Club with only two matches scheduled, both of them ending in much-needed victories.

Chronologically, the first match was in division 2 where the Camelots played promotion-chasing North Cardiff Cheetahs. Mark and Tom Cooke, along with Peter Watkins, earned win, together with a draw from John Stephenson to give us a 3.5 - 1.5 victory.

This was only the second defeat of the season for the Cheetahs. The Camelots move up to fifth place in the table, some five points off the promotion race and seven points above bottom placed Bridgend B – although the latter team do have a game in hand.

In division 4, the Stauntons travelled to Treorchy to play Rhondda B who are propping up the table. We returned home with a good victory by 4-1 with wins from debutant Ashton Grey, John Stephenson, Martin Ricketts and Sam White.

The Stauntons move up to fourth place in the table. Above us sit the Pontypridd Goshawks on the same points but with a better tie break score and a game in hand, and the Barry Gambits only a point ahead.

This result will give the division 4 captain Martin Ricketts a headache with team selection, although the Stauntons still have two games to play against the unbeaten league leaders, Pentyrch C.

The Barry Chess Club meets at 7.30pm each Monday at the West End Club, St Nicholas Road, Barry, CF62 6QY. The club is open to players of all standards; whether you are interested in playing competitive chess or just the occasional friendly game. New players are very welcome to just turn up on the night, but if you contact one of the club members through the website we can explain what is happening on the night you have in mind, and arrange for someone to greet you on your arrival. Non-contact boxing night

A NON-contact boxing night, organised by Intensity Boxing Ltd, has raised nearly £5,500 for Mind Cymru, the mental health charity.

The founder of Intensity Boxing and world champion trainer Darren Wilson, along with First Choice Fitness Llantrisant owner Brendon Lyons, created the event in which fighters hit punch bags against the clock with their power and style determining the winner. Capital One FM's Polly James and Andrew 'Biggie' Morris were among those who took part.

The event took place in Cowbridge and more than 200 people came to cheer the fighters on at Cowbridge Leisure Centre, and talks are already ongoing for the next event.

Vale of Glamorgan Football League – this week's roundup

THE divisional cups took centre stage with the attention on the ASRS, Supporters and Dockers Cups, which are of huge historical importance to the Vale League.

Six of the 10 ties survived the weather and this is the round up for February 9:

Island Marine secured a place in the final four of the Premier Division's ASRS Cup with a 4-1 victory over Sully Sports. Island Marine join Penarth Town and Cowbridge Town in the semi-finals with the St Athan and Rhoose game rearranged for a few weeks time.

The Supporters Cup, which contests Division One sides, saw a thriller with Holton Road coming back from 3-1 down to triumph 4-3 against Tynewydd in a classic cup tie.

Cadoxton Imps romped to a 5-0 victory over SP Billy and Jamie Livingstone was amongst the goals, venturing into the opposition area to score four.

Cwm Talwg edged out Cardiff Airport in another cup corker, 3-2, to make the semi-finals. Only Cogan v Cadoxton Barry is the outstanding tie to be played.

In Division Two's Dockers Cup, league leaders AFC Rhoose thumped Cadoxton Athletic 6-1 and Island Marine shocked third place St Athan as they eased to a 4-1 victory to head to the semi-finals.

Penarth B v Barry Vikings and Barry Athletic B v Vale Madrid did not survive the weather and have been rearranged.

This week, it's back to league action and the SWFA Senior Cup returns with AFC Rhoose representing the Vale League.

Seniors defy weather

A COLD, blustery morning with a mix of rain and lashing hail did little to deter 14 hardy members of St Mary's senior section from teeing off in a better ball Stableford pairs competition.

The unpleasant conditions did dictate, however, that the event was played over a shortened course of 10 holes. Playing in teams of two with the better of the two scores recorded on each hole, the performance of the seven pairs belied the foul weather and heavy going, with the majority of cards breaking the nominal par of 20 points.

In-form octogenarian Bob Coombes' birdie on the par four ninth helped him and partner, Gareth Jones, tot up a winning score of 26 points. Roger Hatton and Fred Furby were placed second with Hatton's birdie two on the par three second pushing their score to 25 points, just one back from Coombes and Jones.

The official fuel consumption figures in mpg (l/100km) for the Mazda2 range: Combined 47.9 (5.9) - 49.6 (5.7)^. CO_2 emissions (g/km) 127 - 111.

Figures shown are for comparability purposes; only compare fuel consumption and CO_2 figures with other cars tested to the same technical procedures. These figures may not reflect real life driving results, which will depend upon a number of factors including the accessories fitted (post-registration), variations in weather, driving styles and vehicle load. ^There is a new test used for fuel consumption and CO_2 figures. The CO_2 figures shown however, are based on the outgoing test cycle and will be used to calculate vehicle tax on first registration.

Floodlight failure sees Barry's clash with Bala abandoned

THERE were remarkable scenes at Jenner Park on Saturday evening, as the live televised JD Welsh Premier League encounter between Barry Town United and Bala fell victim to floodlight failure and was subsequently forced to be abandoned.

With Connah's Quay Nomads crushing Caernarfon Town 6-2 at Deeside Stadium and the New Saints storming to a 5-0 win over Newtown, Barry were needing a victory of their own to keep pace in an increasingly-competitive three-horse title race.

However, it was Colin Caton's visitors, in their change red and white strip, who commanded the game's opening exchanges, retaining possession high in the Barry half before threatening via a close-range Kieran Smith header at the back post.

After two innocuous Barry balls forward were comfortably gathered by the Bala goalkeeper Ashley Morris, the Lakesiders won an attacking free-kick, forcing counterpart Mike Lewis into action after an initial lapse of concentration.

With enterprising right-back Macauley Southam-Hales reduced to the role of spectator while the club's loan appeal rumbles on, the return of Chris Hugh on the opposite flank was a timely boost and it was Hugh who served up Barry's first chance of note, after intercepting an overly-ambitious cross-field pass.

Threading it through to Jonathan Hood, the unshrinking former Port Talbot hotshot cut inside and sent a right-footed effort whizzing past Morris' goal from 25 yards, a welcome reminder of the potency of Barry's attacking threat. With nine minutes played the home side came even closer, with Kayne McLaggon neatly flicking on Lewis' goal kick, allowing team mate Modou Touray to squeeze between two Bala defenders and unleash a shot that rebounded off the woodwork.

It was sixth-placed Bala though who found the opening only 13 minutes in, with the Barry defence failing to deal with a deep free-kick that kick-started chaos in their own penalty area, before the league's leading goalscorer, Steven Tames, bundled in from close range, literally breaking the Barry net in the process.

A goal to the good, the visitors' celebrations were short-lived as Tames' goal proved to be the final action of this most unusual match. Within moments, defensive chaos had switched to confusion on and off the field with the Barry Road end now lit solely by a bustling Jenner Suite and clubhouse.

As match official Bryn Markham-Jones called for a break in proceedings, it soon emerged that smoke had been coming from the floodlight control box adjacent to the new stand, prompting a switch-off in power and a call to the fire brigade. With a nationwide audience watching the events unfold on S4C, attempts were made to resolve the issue, yet the decision was taken to abandon the match entirely, with the safety of everyone involved and the hundreds of spectators paramount.

Nevertheless for Bala this was a particularly tough pill to swallow, with the travelling Lakesiders having fallen victim to floodlight failure at Tre Fiori in the UEFA Europa League and Flint in the JD Welsh Cup earlier on in the season.

As it was, a stunned crowd that included the former Wales international Danny Gabbidon left Jenner Park with little fresh information on Barry's title credentials, though it was certainly a fixture they will not forget in a hurry. Commenting on Twitter, the Vale Council confirmed that there were no issues with the floodlights in the run up to the game, adding they would be repaired as soon as possible and that they would meet with the club this week to assess if any special arrangements can be made for the upcoming televised games.

A revised date of Saturday, March 16 has been confirmed, with a 4pm kick-off.

This Saturday afternoon Barry will at least be blessed by daylight, as Gavin Chesterfield's men lock horns with historic rivals TNS at Park Hall (2.30pm). Despite recording a stunning 5-1 win over Barry on the opening day of Phase One, TNS had stumbled toward the winter break, at least by their own grand standards.

After capitulating at Cardiff MU in September, the Saints shipped successive points against Newtown, Aberystwyth and Caernarfon, before manager Scott Ruscoe steadied his ship with a somewhat-flattering 2-0 win at Jenner Park in November.

Since Christmas the multi-time champions have been on a tear, winning five successive league fixtures by heavy margins without conceding a single goal. Barry's task this Saturday therefore appears a tough one, yet it is not one without precedent, following a sensational 1-0 win at Park Hall last season.

With Connah's Quay in IRN-BRU Cup semi-final action against Edinburgh City, a TNS win this Saturday would see them replace the Nomads on top of the division. Victory for Barry meanwhile would see them shoot into second, prior to the televised visit of Andy Morrison's Connah's Quay on February 23.

News from Barry Rugby Club

IT'S back to league action this weekend for Barry RFC when they travel to Llantwit Fardre for a difficult fixture against the side lying above them in the table, although Barry do have games in hand.

A coach for players and supporters will leave the club at 12.30pm for the 2.30pm kickoff.

Players and members are reminded that the following Saturday, February 23, the club will be showing the eagerly-anticipated Wales v England game on the big screen at the clubhouse, where a free curry will be provided during the afternoon.

The lottery rolls over again this week to £3,700 after last week's numbers of 09, 14, 22 and 24 failed to find a winner.

No tickets managed to match three numbers to claim the consolation prize.

Holton Road's new kit raises cancer awareness

HOLTON Road AFC would like to thank Jamie and all his staff from Macron, Cardiff, for supplying and sponsoring the under-14s new special kit in order to raise awareness for cancer.

One of the player's parents, Martine Adams, has a rare form of cancer, diffuse leptomeningeal glironeuronal tumour, an extremely rare tumour of the central nervous system. With the special kit being a bright pink, we hope to raise awareness of this terrible illness.

Jamie and his staff from Macron Cardiff supply all our kits and the club are very thankful that he and his staff were able to supply and design this new kit.

Seaview Lads' slim pickings!

SEA angling is a funny sport.

Just weeks ago, the Seaview Lads were setting out with high hopes of landing a nice fish for the table following a run of cod being caught along the shoreline, but as soon as they arrived, they left!

The stalwart members have not been deterred, however, and despite catches declining to previous levels, the lads have still enjoyed some sport, albeit with mixed results.

January saw some good weights being landed and ended not with a bang but a whimper, while February started with... well, actually it didn't!

Results: January 20: 1st Ollie – 12lb 8oz; 2nd Ada – 6lb 5oz; 3rd Nathan – 6lb 2oz. January 27: 1st Jordan – 3lb 3oz; 2nd Kevin – 2lb 5oz; 3rd Ada – .1lb 5oz.

The first competition of February was fished on a freezing Sunday on a day when nobody landed a single fish in size - a rare event indeed.

There is a meeting on Thursday, February 7, a competition on Friday evening (February 8) as well as on Sunday, February 10. New members are welcomes; for an informal chat, call Steve on 07876 760384.

SIX NATIONS 2019

ITALY 15 WALES 26

Rome clash was designed to put Welsh World Rugby Cup hopefuls under stress - and it certainly did!

Match report by Philip Irwin

ONE lost and unlamented fixture in the rugby calendar was the 'Probables v Possibles' trial match , but this low key game in the Stadio Olympico had all the hallmarks of one.

It was a pretty ruthless choice by Wales coach Warren Gatland, and the subtext was: "If you underperform against Italy, you're not going to be much use in Japan."

No matter what the coaching team say in terms of PR, winning the Six Nations would be a bonus, but it is not a priority.

Looking at the Welsh team that took the field, there were probably only two nailed on dead certs for the Rugby World Cup squad - first-time captain Jonathan Davies and Liam Williams.

Add to that two 'probables' - my gut feeling is that Gatland likes what he sees in Josh Adams, and trusts Samson Lee, depending on the prop's match fitness.

Dan Biggar has a category all to himself. He has nothing left to prove in his career. It's a question of how Gatland wants to play. Ironically, Dan was probably the one player who did succumb to trial nerves.

That left 10 players walking the tightrope.

As it happens, in Porthcawl, the Bridgend Youth Theatre are rehearsing the musical Chorus Line, and the opening number kept springing to mind, as in: "I hope I get it. How many people does he need?"

How do you approach a game like this? Obviously, you want to prove you are a team player, but you also want to show the coaches that little bit extra you can bring.

But God forbid you do your best trick at the wrong time and blow a scoring chance!

Here's Chorus Line again: "I really blew it! How could I do a thing like that!"

Wales started the match with the back row, conscious of how much competition there is in that area, tearing into Italy, and winning a penalty in the first minute. It's fair to say that all three, Thomas Young, Aaron Wainwright and Josh Navidi, did their prospects no harm at all. Wainwright looked a particularly powerful ball carrier, and Young was everywhere. These two played the whole match, while Navidi came off at around 65 minutes, replaced at No8 by Ross Moriarty, so he was relaxing on the bench when he was given the man of the match award.

Biggar kicked that first minute penalty, but the first real attacking opportunity came when right wing Jonah Holmes gambled and failed to get to his man in time, leaving the Italian left wing, Esposito in plenty of space. Fortunately for Wales, he was isolated from his support runners and the threat petered out.

Two minutes later Wales were back on the attack, and this time a dominant Welsh scrum was rewarded with another penalty, again kicked by Biggar.

Further Welsh pressure led to a sharp interception by Wainwright and Wales won a third penalty, on 12 minutes, again kicked by the outside half for a 9-0 lead.

By this point, the Welsh pressure was intense and the pace of the game high. Italy were fortunate that Wales had knocked on twice in attacking positions in the 22, and it looked a if it would be a long, tiring day for Italy.

Perhaps the dominance led to Dan Biggar deciding to show off his range of kicking skills, but things didn't go to plan.

First, there was a neat cross kick from inside his own 22, designed to put Josh Adams in the clear. Adams did his bit, but his opposite number, Padovani, was better placed to take the ball, and taller than Adams to boot. Only desperate defence stopped him from crossing for a try.

Two minutes later, Wales turned the ball over in their 22 and it was counter attack time. But, with plenty of men outside him, Biggar opted to show how far he can kick. It was a long kick, but Italy were back in numbers to tidy up.

Stung by these slip ups, Bigger decided to do what he does best two minutes later, launching a huge, high kick, chasing it and taking a great catch. Wales had a good chance to score from that when the ball was moved wide to Jonathan Davies, but his long, looping pass to Holmes on the wing gave the Italian defence time to get across.

Wales did have a penalty advantage, and Biggar kicked it to make it 12-0.

Five minutes later, Italy had their first attacking penalty, 30 metres out, but outside half Tomasso Allan, opted to kick for the corner. Wales held the line-out drive, but Italy went through the phases and eventually, open side Braam Steyn, with help from second row Sisi, forced his way over for a try.

Allan converted to make it 12-7, and just before half-time, he had a penalty chance from 35 metres to cut the gap to two.

Fortunately for Wales, he hit the post and Wales were able to tidy it up and head into the half time break.

At the start of the second half, it was back to Chorus Line again. After a chip ahead went out on the full, Biggar was holding his head in his hands, probably muttering: "How could I do a thing like that!"

Match summariser David Flatman, who throughout the game was terrific at explaining what was going on in the scrums, mused: "Dan looks like he is under pressure." A nice piece of understatement.

Italy took advantage of that slip, went upfield and Allan kicked a penalty to make it 12-10.

Gatland was losing patience, and the substitutes were warming up.

What's more, a winning bonus point was looking a distant prospect.

On 45 minutes, Wales had a penalty just out of Biggar's range, but he showed that he is not the type of character who goes into his shell when things go awry, launching a superb kick to give Wales a line out five metres out.

However, the Welsh line out did not function smoothly all day, and Italy were able to clear.

The game was struggling for excitement and spectacle, leaving the commentary team to get terribly excited when Liam Williams, under pressure chasing back to field a kick, did a one-handed 'Beauden Barrett' pick up. Not quite a Beauden pick up however, because he was tackled before he could get in the clear. It did indicate, I think, that Liam was not feeling the pressure.

There was time for Biggar to miss touch with a penalty, and follow that with a kick into touch on the full, and then Anscombe was ready on the touchline. At this point, scrum half Aled Davies took matters into his own hands and made a sharp break down the touchline, and Wales were able, for once, to move the ball quickly across field, for Liam Williams to cut through and put Adams in at the corner. The wing ran round to touch down behind the posts, so that Dan Biggar's last action was to take his points tally up to 14 with the conversion.

Wales had plenty of ball, and now it was Gareth Anscombe's turn to pull the strings, but it was 10 minutes before they had a chance. They ran the ball in the Italian 22, and Jonathan Davies put a short kick through, profiting from confusion in the Italian defence to touch down.

However, referee Mathieu Raynal had his doubts and for the first time of the day, TMO David Grashoff was asked to take a look. It came down to a tight call, depending on whether Davies' knee or hand had nudged the ball forward as he crossed the line, and Italy were given the benefit of the doubt.

A few minutes later, an Italian attacking kick was well fielded by Josh Adams, who made a good break and passed on to Owen Watkin who took play to the Italy 22. Watkin had a cool, calm and collected day, and did his prospects no harm at all.

From the scrum, Italy were penalised, although David Flatman was adamant that Wales had been the actual offenders. Wales kicked for the corner, but the line out drive was held. Wales went through the phases until Anscombe's short chip was followed up by Watkin, who touched down first.

Anscombe's conversion made it 26 - 10, but Italy came straight back and from a good backs' move, Allan cut through a huge gap before putting right wing Padovani in for a well-deserved try, which was not converted.

Wales had about eight minutes left to score two tries for a bonus point but it was not to be. Thomas Young finished off a handling move, and it looked as if he had his first Six Nations try, but Mr Raynal wanted the TMO to take a close look at a short Anscombe pass in the build-up, and sadly for Young, it was ruled forward.

After the game, Warren Gatland was quoted as saying that Wales would lose in two weeks time to England if they played like that. No one is going to disagree with that.

However, there are mutterings from the Welsh cap that many of the players have been in 'deep training' to get them at a peak for England.

Whatever that means, you can safely bet that a very different Welsh team will take the field in the Principality Stadium!
